NOTES FOR THE GUIDANCE OF SEARCHERS IN THE MAIN INDEX

1. Alphabetical order is determined by treating each heading (excluding subheads) as a whole, whether composed of one word or several words. Thus Aliens would come between Ali Bin Rashid and Ali Fahmy.

Subheads do not affect the order of the main heading, from which they are separated by a colon; e.g., Bavaria: Royal Family would come before Bavarian League.

Conjunctions and prepositions occurring in a heading are, for alphabetical purposes, treated in the same way as any other words.

2. Initials are treated as subheads except in the case of vessels bearing the name of a person, when the whole name is indexed as it stands. For example, T. R. Horton, s.s., would come between Treaties and Trials.

3. It is sometimes impossible to subdivide a large heading into a single series of subheads. In such cases there may be one series (such as country-subheads) in alphabetical order, and another series (for various aspects of a subject or for events in a country) not necessarily in alphabetical order.

4. Where the names of two countries occur in a heading, the first in alphabetical order is placed first; e.g., Japanese trade with Argentina would be found under Trade and Commerce: Argentina and Japan.

5. Oriental names are usually indexed as they stand, unless the first word is obviously a title, when it is placed at the end. This does not apply to Japanese names, which are indexed under the last name.

6. The heading Loans is subdivided according to the country raising the loan, e.g., a loan from the Netherlands to Austria would be indexed under Loans: Austria, not Loans: Netherlands.

7. Correspondence with, or concerning, banks is assembled under the heading Banks and Banking without references under their names. In a similar way, entries are assembled under such headings as Hospitals, Museums, Universities, &c.

8. Affairs in Great Britain and matters connected with British administration, laws, colonies, &c., are indexed under Great Britain with its series of subheads in the same manner as in the case of foreign countries (but see paragraph 12).

9. Matters affecting individual diplomatic and consular posts are indexed under the name of the town in which they are established, e.g., London: Austrian Legation. Paris: British Embassy.

10. It is important that searches should not be confined to the most likely subhead. The point at issue may have been originally overshadowed by other questions associated with it, and consequently indexed under some other subhead, or under the main heading alone. To save space, entries are not usually duplicated under different subdivisions of one heading.

Subdivisions of headings vary from year to year owing to fluctuations in the volume of correspondence. For example, in one year there may be a separate subhead under Disarmament: Germany for Aeronautical Control, while in the following year the number of entries on this subject may be so few that they would be indexed under Disarmament: Germany only.

It should also be remembered that a few papers, which have not passed through the Registry, are kept in the various Departments, and that no record of them appears in this Index.

11. A sequence of closely connected entries is indicated by a dash at the beginning of the second and subsequent entries. The word "file" indicates that the file as a whole is relevant and that its component papers have not all been indexed separately.

12. Search should usually be directed towards subject-headings rather than country-headings as the index is compiled as far as practicable under subjects in preference to countries.

13. The figures preceded by a letter are the numbers of individual papers: these are followed successively by the file number and the index number, the last indicating the country and archives-division.

Example of numbering:—

A613/A9214/613/45/N428/17/38 would stand for papers 613 and 9214 of the American series, kept in file 613 of subdivision 45 (i.e., United States), and paper 428 of the Northern series, kept in file 17 of subdivision 38 (i.e., Soviet Union).

14. A list of abbreviations current during the year is given on page v for convenience of reference, although not all of them appear in the index.

Numbers 201-298 denote the above countries, &c., in the Consular series.

INTRODUCTION

Of the eleven broad categories of documents which together compose the archives of the British Foreign Office now in the custody of the Public Record Office (see the Guide to the Contents of the Public Record Office, London, H.M. Stationery Office, 1963, Vol. II, pp. 123-4), perhaps the most important, and certainly that most consulted for the purpose of scholarly research, is the Department's General Correspondence, consisting as it does of original dispatches and reports from British diplomatic and consular representatives abroad, letters from foreign missions in Britain and from individuals, and drafts or copies of letters sent from the Foreign Office.

For the period ending in 1905 this General Correspondence is for the most part arranged under countries, so that all the papers relating to any one foreign state form a separate class: there is one class of Supplementary Correspondence (itself arranged under countries), another relating to the Slave Trade, and two classes of Registers of General Correspondence (see the Guide, cited above, Vol. II, p. 128). Lists of all these classes have been published as follows:

- (i) To 1878, in Public Record Office Lists and Indexes, No. 52, published 1929, reissued (with amendments) by the Kraus Reprint Division of the Kraus-Thomson Organization;
- (ii) 1879 to 1905, in Supplementary Lists and Indexes, No. XIII, Vols. 1-4, issued by the Kraus Reprint Division of the Kraus-Thomson Organization.

In 1906 the Foreign Office began to arrange its General Correspondence not immediately under countries but under a number of 'functional' headings (each now forming a separate Public Record Office class) of which the earliest were 'Africa (New Series)', 'Commercial', 'Consular', 'Library', 'Political', and 'Treaty'; the classification has been elaborated from time to time, as circumstances required, to include other headings, such as 'Contraband', 'News' and 'Prisoners', during the 1914-18 war, 'Dominions Information' in 1929, 'Communications' in 1936 and 'Cultural Relations' in 1944. Within each of these classes the papers for each year are subdivided under countries or subjects, with a residue of miscellaneous, general or special volumes. This arrangement of the papers themselves reflected that which had been observed for a long time before 1906 in the Registers of General Correspondence (see above) compiled in the Foreign Office. In these registers the correspondence composing each 'country' class is noticed in separate volumes according to its character as 'Diplomatic', 'Consular', 'Commercial', 'Treaty', etc.

On the introduction in 1906 of the changed classification of its General Correspondence, the Foreign Office began for its own convenience to maintain a card-index, running for a year at a time, of the subjects treated in accruing papers. The fourteen annual indexes for the years 1906 to 1919 amount together to upwards of three-quarters of a million manuscript cards, which may be consulted only in the Search Rooms of the Public Record Office. For reasons arising out of the introduction in 1920 of a new filing system, the card-index for 1919 covers a great quantity of papers actually belonging to the following year.

The Foreign Office's own need for more than a single copy of an important means of tracing its recent files led it to adopt the practice of printing a very small number of copies of the annual card-index for distribution in book form within the Department. The first index so printed was that for 1920; and for almost thirty years after this the preparation of the printed indexes was carried out under the direction of the same supervising editor, a circumstance that makes for a high degree of consistency in indexing practice and uniformity in presentation.

In common with almost all the records of British Government departments, the archives of the Foreign Office, including the General Correspondence, are in principle opened to public inspection in the Public Record Office when they are thirty years old. As later Foreign Office correspondence becomes publicly accessible under this rule, the indexes covering it will be published in the present series. The 'open' date normally advances one year at a time; but by way of a special exception the release of certain important archives for the whole period of the Second World War (including the correspondence of the Foreign Office) has been accelerated.

Each volume of index contains at pp. iii and iv a set of printed notes, originally intended for the guidance of official users at a time when the General Correspondence itself had not left the Foreign Office. These notes remain very valuable but need some amplification here in view of the transfer of the documents to the custody of the Public Record Office and the distribution of copies of the indexes to a wider circle of users.

Like all departmental papers or files of modern date in the keeping of the Public Record Office, the General Correspondence of the Foreign Office for the period covered by these printed indexes now consists of the residue remaining after the elimination of documents deemed to be of insufficient administrative or academic interest to warrant their permanent preservation, the application of 'weeding' procedures to public records having been sanctioned by Acts of Parliament of 1877, 1898 and 1958. The printed indexes were compiled when all the documents indexed were of topical interest, however transitory, to the administrator and before the elimination of ephemera; and they therefore contain references to some papers which no longer exist, though it is believed that losses, especially from the more recent files, have not been extensive or important.

The system of letters, numbers and sub-numbers used in the indexes to cite individual files and papers is naturally that employed in the Foreign Office itself; and before a document can be produced for inspection or photo-copying, its Foreign Office reference has to be translated into the appropriate Public Record Office call-number. This is effected by means of the class-lists of Foreign Office General Correspondence, of which the continuing publication, in No. XIII of the Supplementary Lists and Indexes, is recorded in Sectional List No. 24, British National Archives, obtainable from H.M. Stationery Office. Enquirers who order by post from the Public Record Office photocopies of large numbers of documents identified only by their Foreign Office references may be advised to employ a record agent to translate the references and to verify the continued existence of the documents concerned.

Errors and omissions that came to light late in the passage of any of the original printed indexes through the press were repaired by the Foreign Office compilers in a set of addenda printed at the end of the last volume of the year; and in two 'master copies', maintained in the Foreign Office, instructions to the reader to 'See Addenda' were inserted by hand at the appropriate points in the body of the index. Any further amendments found necessary after the index had been printed off were entered in manuscript, or typed on inserted pages, at their alphabetical places in the two master copies. In the present edition, which is based on these master copies, the instruction to the reader to see the printed addenda at the end of the last volume for the year is conveyed by means of a single marginal asterisk; in each volume the scattered manuscript and typescript amendments of the master copies have been collected and listed in the preliminary pages as 'inserenda'; attention is called to them in the body of the index by the use of double marginal asterisks. It will occasionally be found that an entry in the printed addenda is duplicated in the inserenda; such duplication is inherited from the archetype and could not have been avoided without an excessively detailed check.

Papers of a secret or confidential nature, having a restricted circulation in the Foreign Office and known, from their horizontal band of green hatching, as 'green papers', were omitted by the compilers from the printed indexes unless they had been 'de-greened' at an early stage. The 'green papers' themselves, numbered in conformity with normal Foreign Office practice, are in their logical places among the rest of the General Correspondence and do not form a physically separate series; but they were separately indexed. The annual indexes to the 'green papers', which begin in 1921, are reproduced in the present series.

Successive Foreign Office systems of filing and registration are described and explained in The Records of the Foreign Office, 1782-1939 (Public Record Office Handbooks, No. 13; London, H.M. Stationery Office, 1969).

NOTE ON THE PRESENT EDITION

The attention of readers is drawn to the Introduction to be found at the beginning of volume 1 of this year's index.

* One asterisk in the margin after an entry indicates that additional material belonging to this alphabetical place may be found in the Addenda at the end of volume 4 of this year's index.

 Two asterisks in the margin after an entry indicate that further matter is to be inserted. The inserenda are listed below.
